Where We've Lived and Learned to Know the Years We'll See You Sweet Afterglow.
From the day school resumed in September to the very last moments in May, the junior class planned and enthusiastically executed the many projects which they undertook. Leading the class in these activities were class officers Ed Miller, president; Dave Fisher, vice-president; Leslie Hamilton, secretary; and Susie Oehorn, treasurer. Advisors for the junior class were Mrs. Dorothy Swindoll and Mr. William Bridgeland. Always ready for fun, the juniors helped spark the varsity team on to victory, held a chili supper as a money raising project for the prom, and participated with great enthusiasm in various plays and musical productions.

This enthusiastic class had a serious side also. Already the pressure of college was present, and they took the PSAT and other tests to prepare themselves for the long hours of college board exams ahead of them. In late spring, many juniors swelled the ranks of the OHS honoraries and were inducted into the Cum Laude, Quill and Scroll and National Honor Society. The climax of this wonderful year was the Junior Senior Prom, an unforgettable night for all who attended. The junior class now look forward with eagerness to their senior and last year of high school.
We Learn Today, We Build Tomorrow

Although college is still two years away, Bill Unsicker, Barb Eighert, Jill Haines and Allan Loppie stroll over the U. of I. campus grounds to observe the many familiar and traditional buildings of their future alma mater.
These mischievous juniors did not let Halloween pass by without pulling a prank on a poor befuddled senior, Pete Bates.

The Door to Success Is Labeled Push

Our High School Years, Moments of...
Sophomore Class

"Golly, we're finally sophomores!" was an often heard comment in the halls of CHS when school resumed in September. The newcomers, who now exclaimed in awe and admiration, were the "Seniors of 1965" as they called themselves with an air of importance—and important they were.

Orientation Day, the Howdy Hop, and assistance from upperclassmen and faculty all aided the sophomores in becoming acquainted with CHS, but it soon became evident that the "little sophomores" needed no assistance when it came to pep and enthusiasm. Under the capable leadership of class officers Nancy Easterbrook, president; Sara Kretschmer, vice-president; Terry Florelling, secretary; and Kathy Owens, treasurer, this eager class sparked the interest in every activity from athletic events to musical productions. Advisors for the class of 1965 were Mrs. Helen Kohlmeyer and Mr. Harold Jester.

It was a wonderful year, from the first exciting day to the last unforgettable moment when the sophomores realized that their first year of high school was coming to a close. Many new friendships had been made, much knowledge had been gained, and now the sophomores could look forward to their next two years at CHS.
